2. Description of discipline: The educational and methodological complex presents topics that together form a system for presenting philosophical knowledge. Philosophical training traditionally occupies an important place in the system of higher education, since the study of this field of knowledge is the way to achieve the goals of human education.

The main goal of the proposed educational and methodological complex is to provide a holistic presentation of philosophical knowledge, to give methodologically key provisions that provide the necessary basis and direction for the thinking of readers and their understanding of the topics being studied.

The educational and methodical complex in philosophy was created according to a fundamentally new scheme. For each topic are presented: a brief but memorable abstract; the main conceptual provisions of philosophical teachings; the most striking details that characterize the historical era and the philosophical heritage of a particular thinker, represented by quotations from his works as an epigraph; "place in history", assessments of this philosopher with the maximum range of opinions; an extensive bibliography indicating the most significant chapters and sections from the works of the philosopher, and literature about his teachings. The educational and methodical complex is a full-fledged teaching aid for the course "Philosophy". At the same time, students and graduate students in the conditions of the most severe shortage of time on its basis can receive high-quality information.

The purpose and objectives of the discipline

Extensive philosophical generalizations and correct methodology will help reflect the last stages of history without distortion, determine the features of the development of social life, formulate the main value and worldview guidelines of a person.

The purpose of mastering this discipline is considered to be the creation of correct ideas about the subject of philosophy and its essence, important schools and trends, great thinkers, as well as the main approaches to solving problems about the general scientific picture of the world and global problems of our time, as well as the formation of the philosophical culture of future specialists, current students' universities.

Based on the goal of the program, the following tasks are solved:

- determination of the features of the philosophical worldview and its difference from other sciences;
- determination of the relationship of philosophy with such worldview systems as religion, science, ethics, aesthetics, law, etc.;
- determination of the purpose and social functions of philosophy, its role in the formation of the spiritual values of society and man;
- disclosure of the epistemological meaning of philosophy in the conditions of the formation of post-Soviet society;
- disclosure of the historical varieties of the philosophical worldview;
- familiarization with foreign and domestic philosophical trends.
- The general course is designed for 36 classroom hours, of which 18 hours are devoted to lectures, 18 hours to seminars.
- The philosophy course is designed for 1 semester. Students' knowledge is determined by the module-rating system.
